

Rá The Ruler Of All

Written and illustrated by Shakir Serdani

Copyright by Shakir Serdani
May 6, 2015

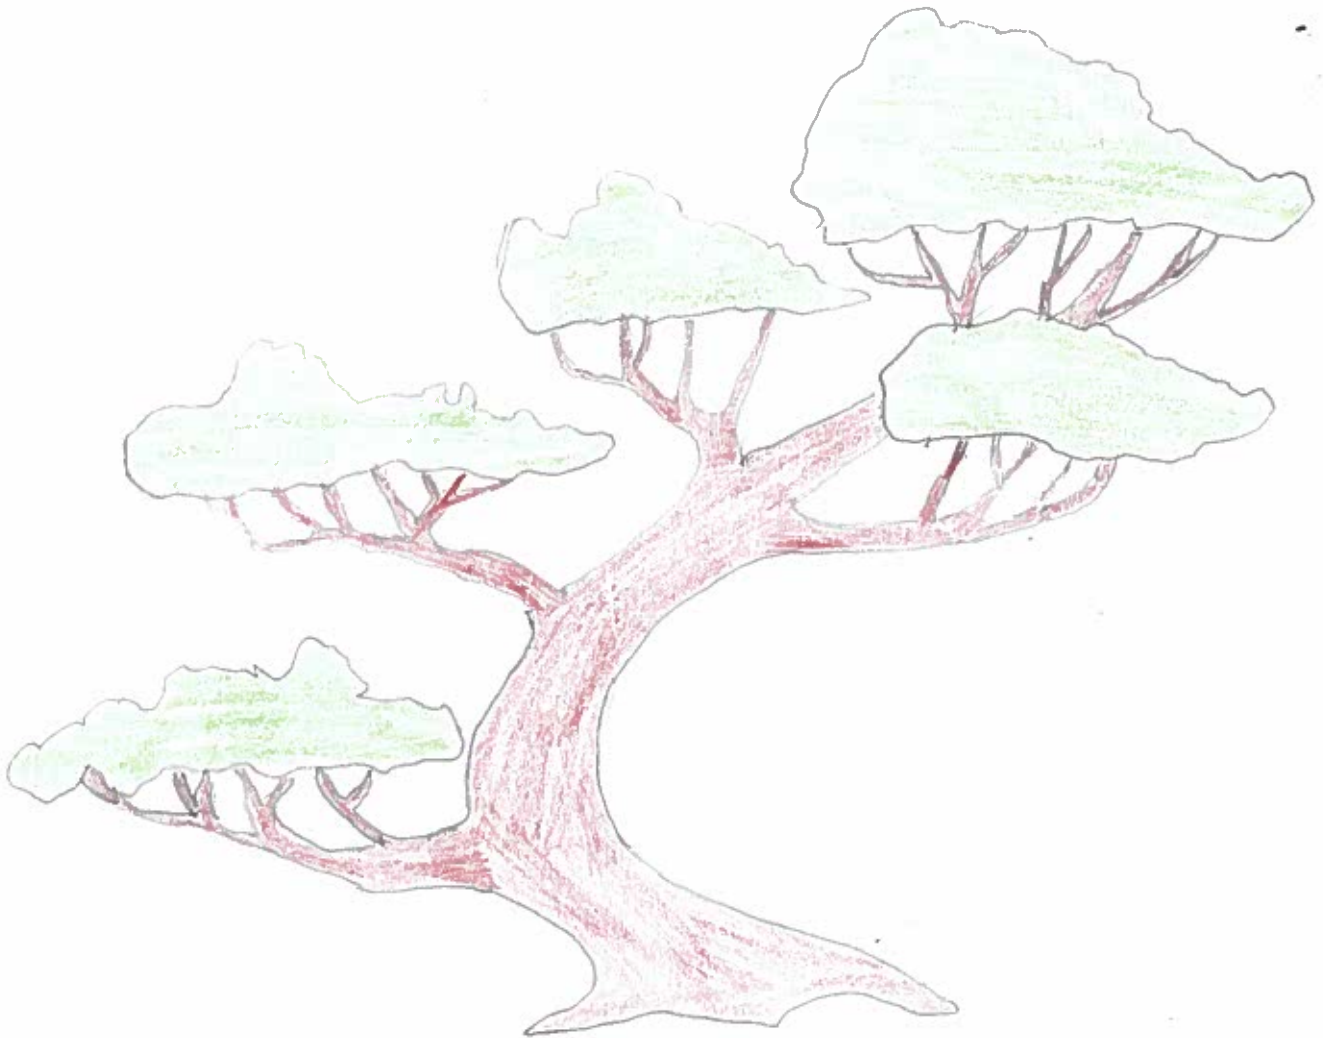

Dedicated to Jacob

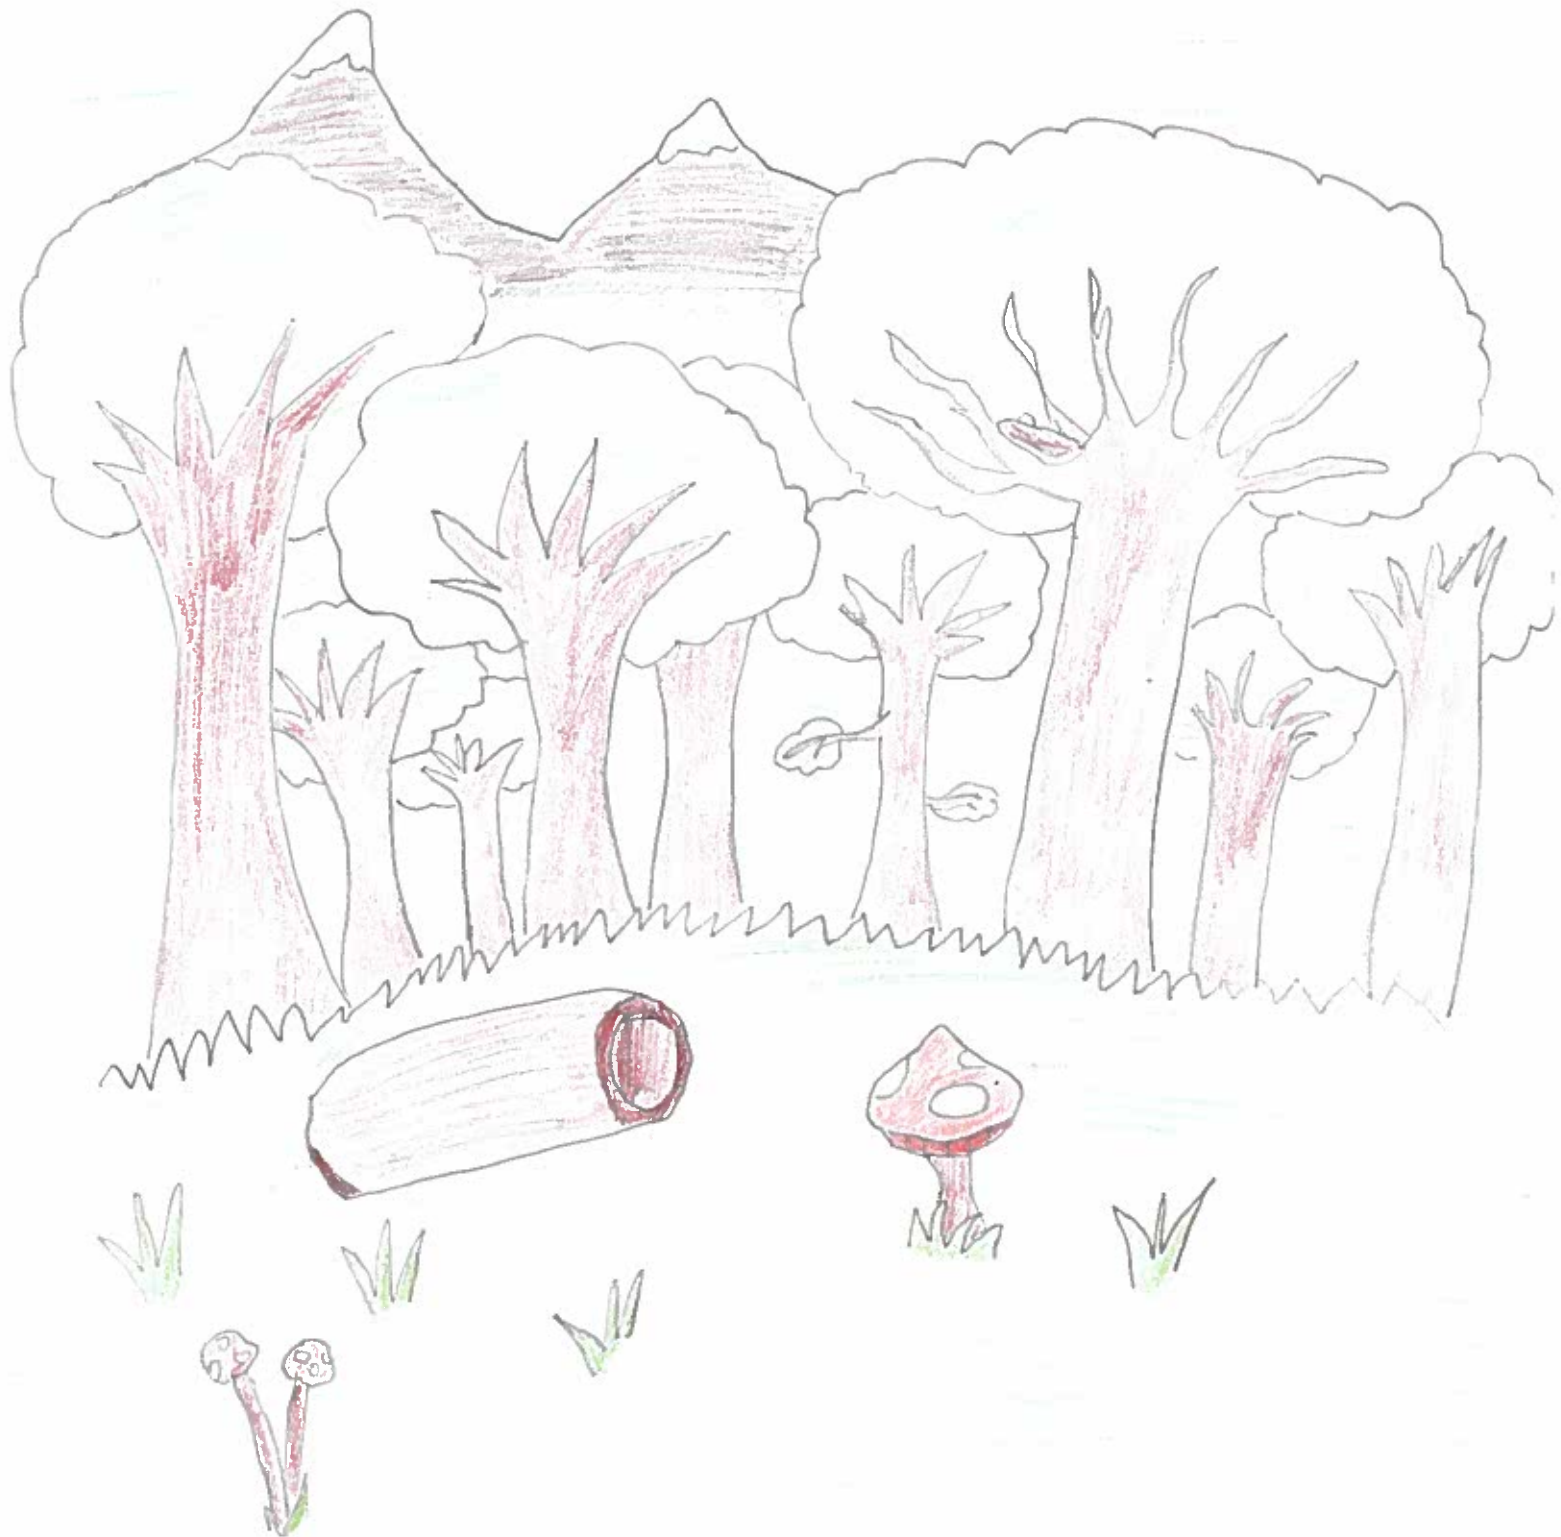

Rá is the God of the sun, the ruler of all, the strongest and bravest. Rá only had two enemies: vampires and dragons, since centuries ago vampires have teamed up with dragons to defeat the all mighty Rá.

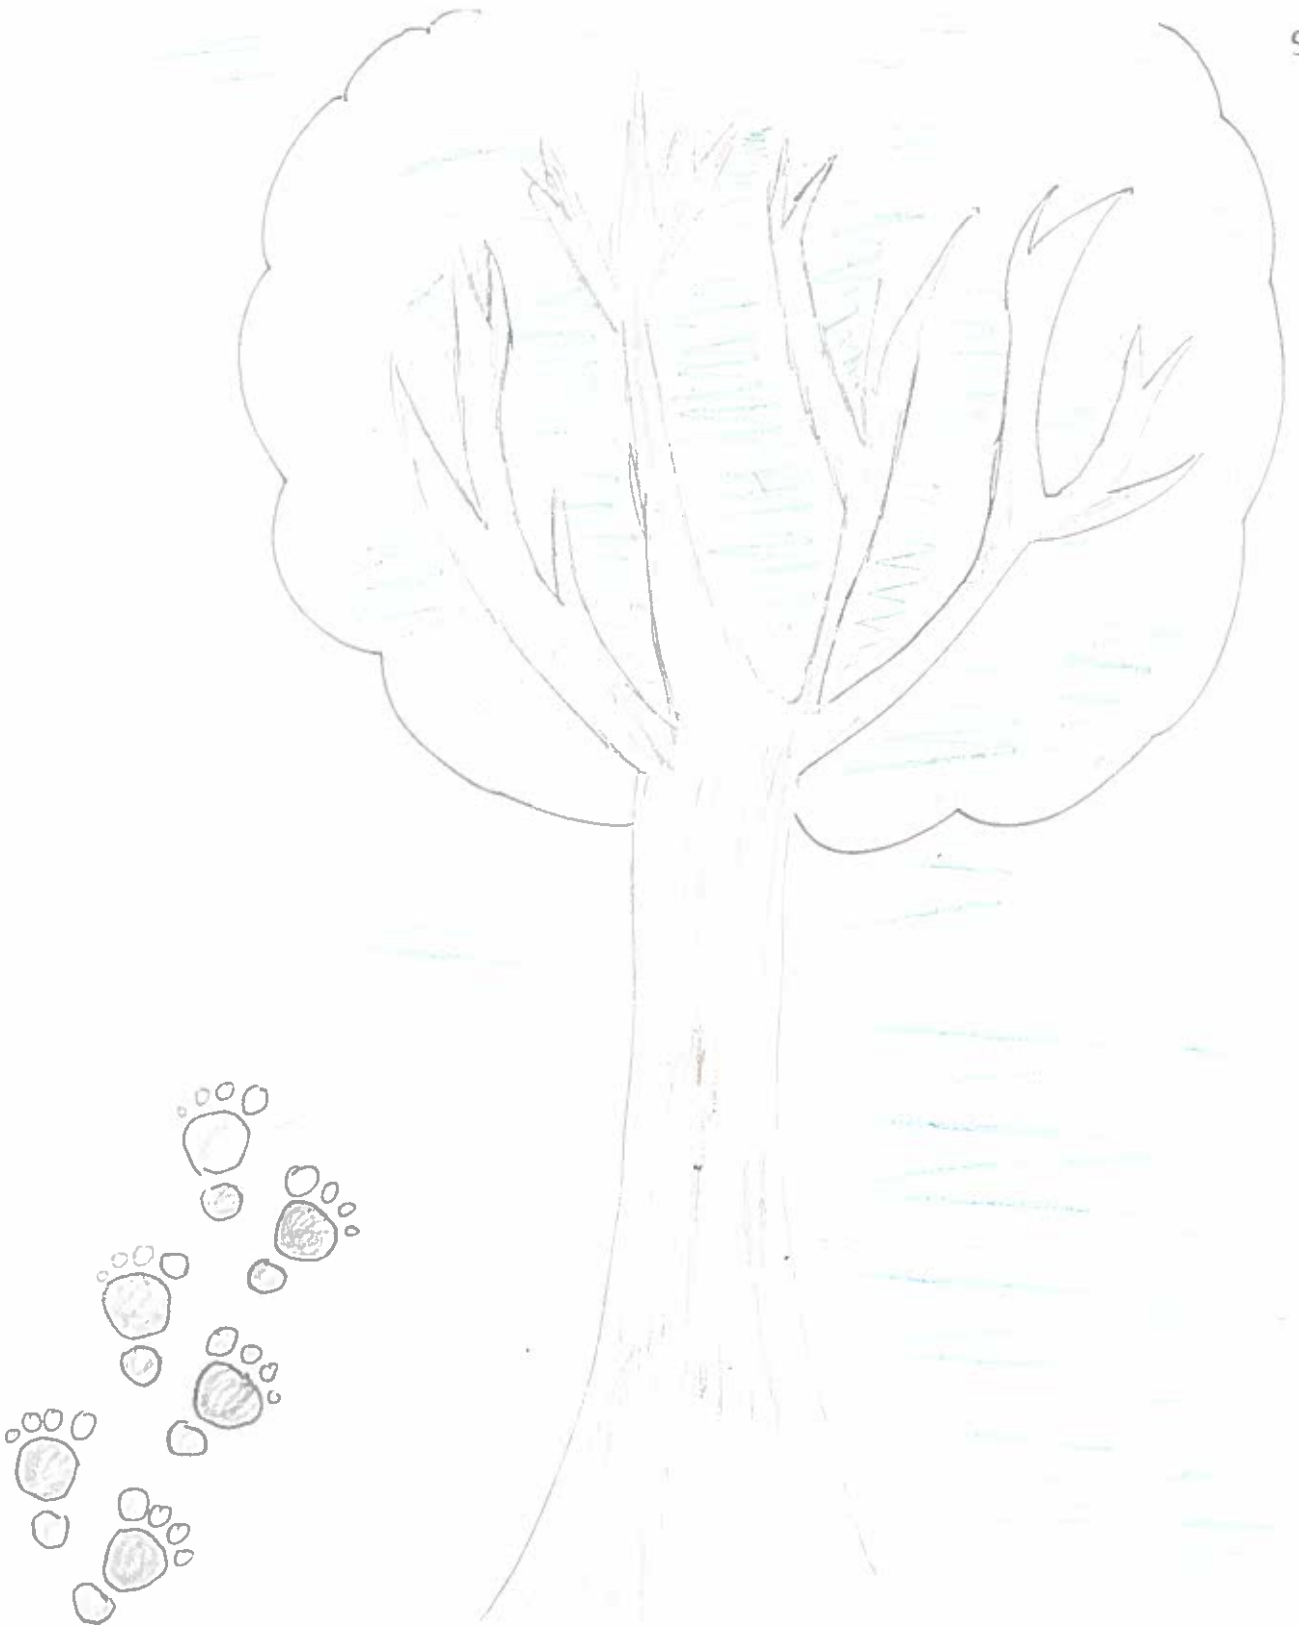

One day Rá and his best friend Jacob were exploring in the woods. They came across a very dangerous part of the forest that has been forever forbidden. There had been myths about people exploring that part of the woods. They said that vampires and dragons lived together, planning to bring death to the god of the sun.

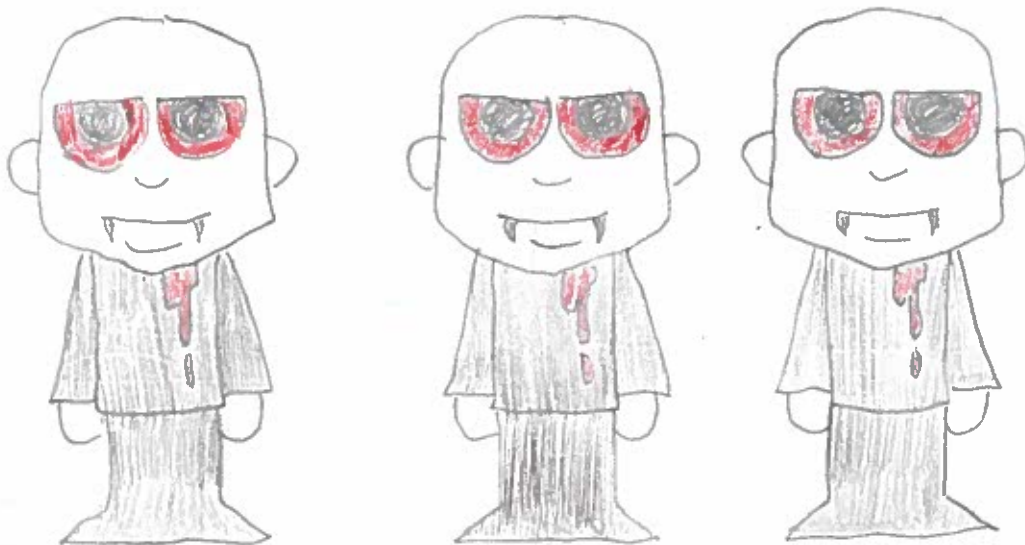

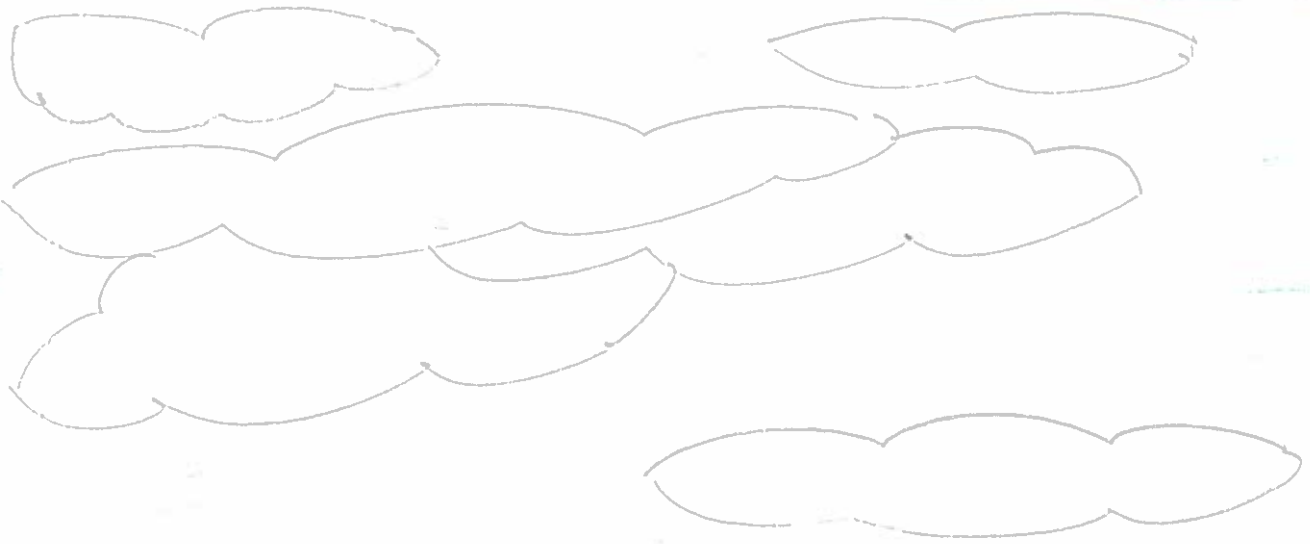

Jacob and Rá decided to enter the forbidden part of the forest. They both didn't understand the true strength and capabilities of dragons and vampires. As Rá was talking to Jacob he turned around and noticed Jacob was gone!

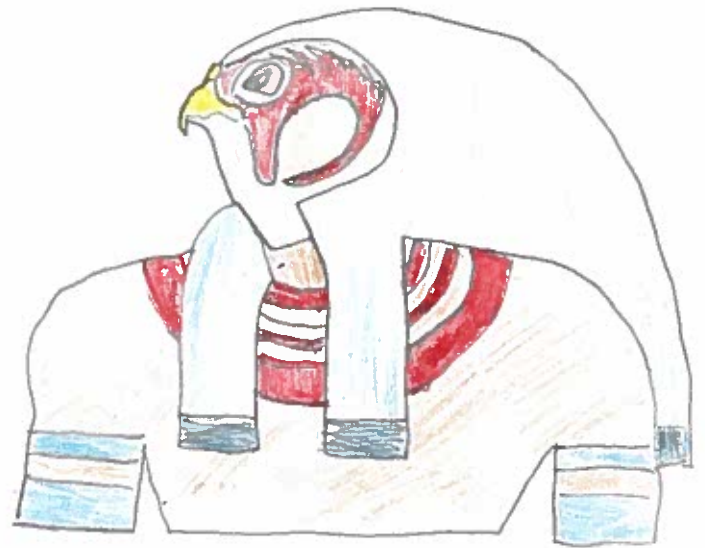

"Jacob!" Rá shouted. There was no response. His first reaction was to panic, but then he reminded himself that he was a god and he had powers to do anything.

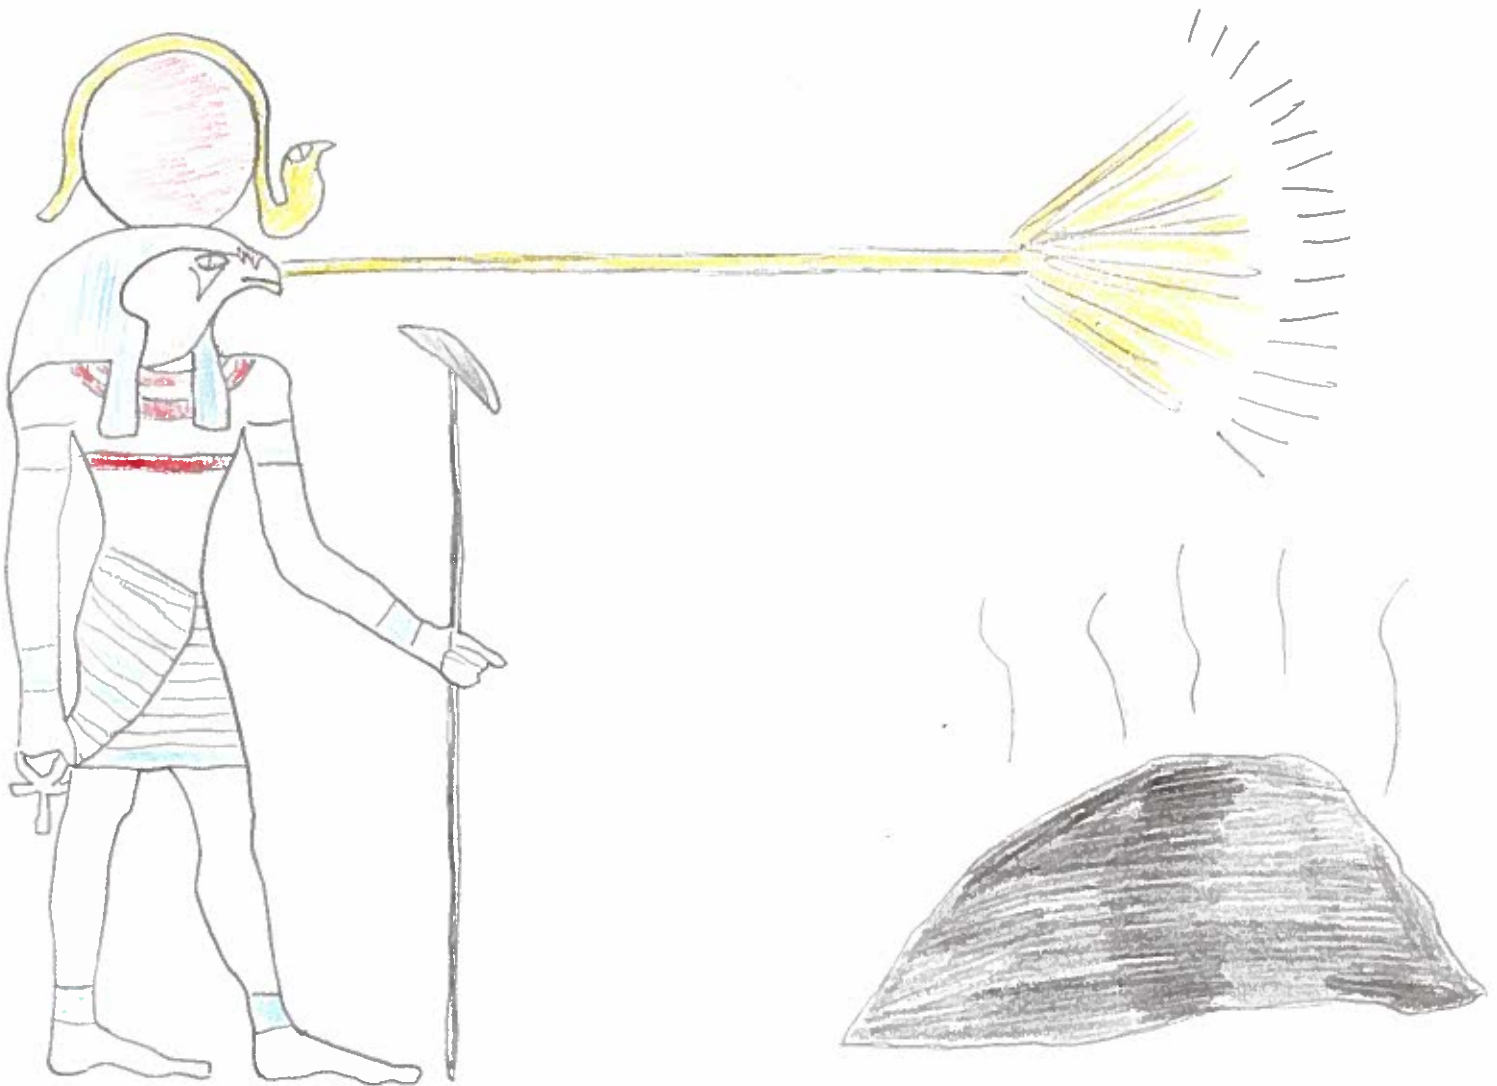

Rá observes his surroundings and notices footprints leading through a hidden trail. "The vampires must have got to him.", he whispered to himself. He knew that he must find Jacob before he is taken to the dragon God.

As Rá continuous with the tracks he hears rustling in the bushes. Fifteen vampires submerge from the bushes and tackle him. Rá knew he must prevent the vampires fangs from piercing him or else his life as a god will end and he will forever be a vampire.

Rá being the god of the sun, is able to shoot the brightest light in the universe through his eyes. He readied himself and closed his eyes. Building up the energy of a god, Rá unleashed his powers.

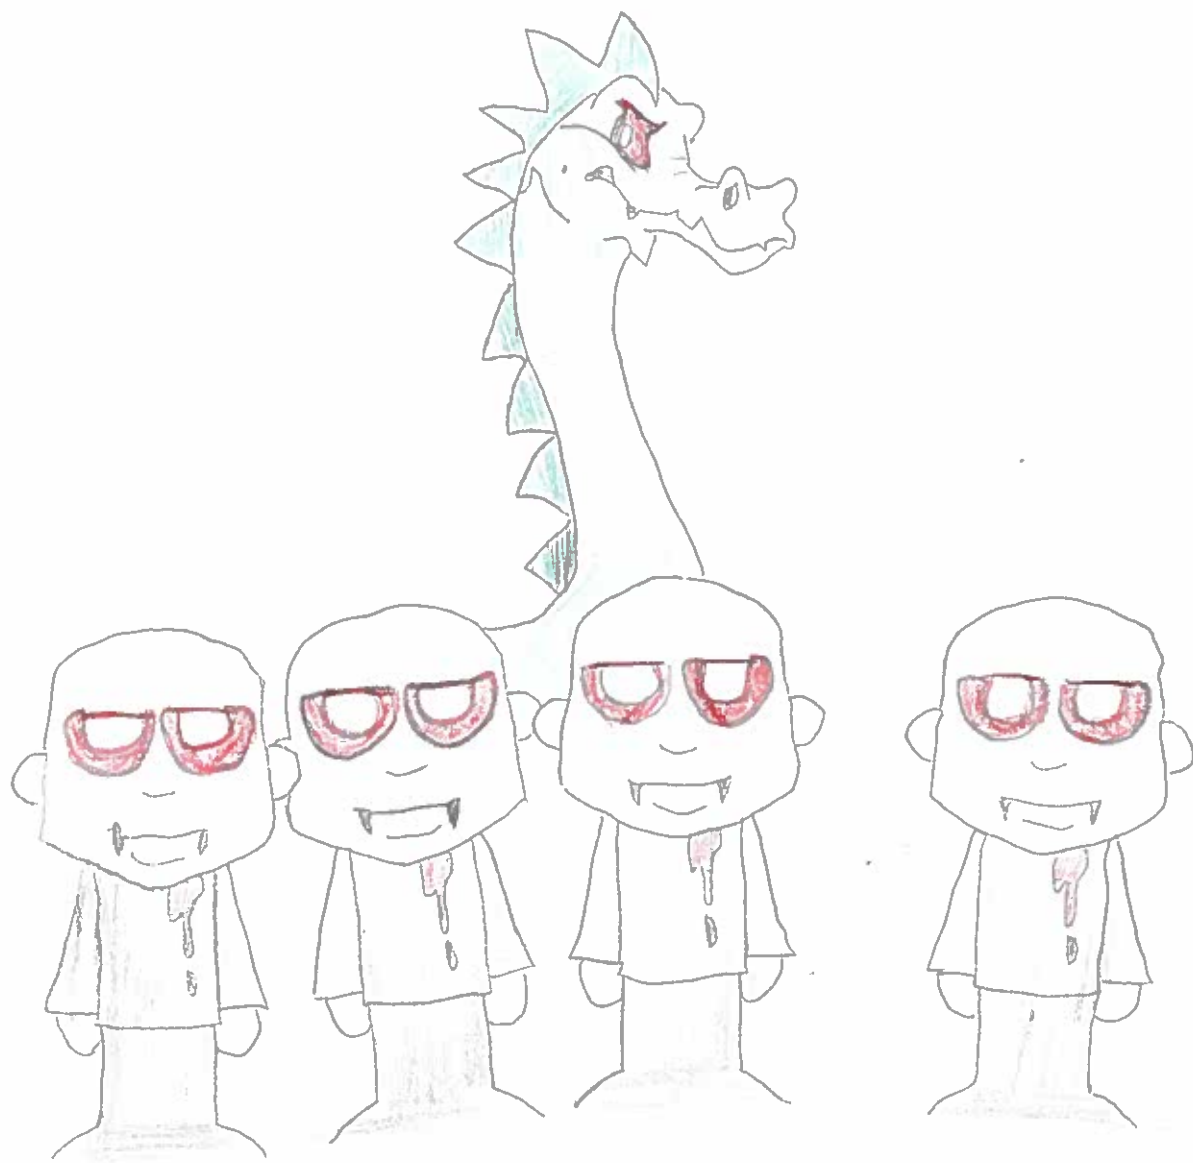

As his eyes opened, his pupils widened. He emitted the light of ten thousand suns burning all fifteen vampires into a pile of ash. This tired him out very much causing him to lose consciousness and faint.

Rá woke up tied to a tree and unable to move. He was surrounded by three dragons. Rá analyzed the situation he had been put into and made a quick decision.

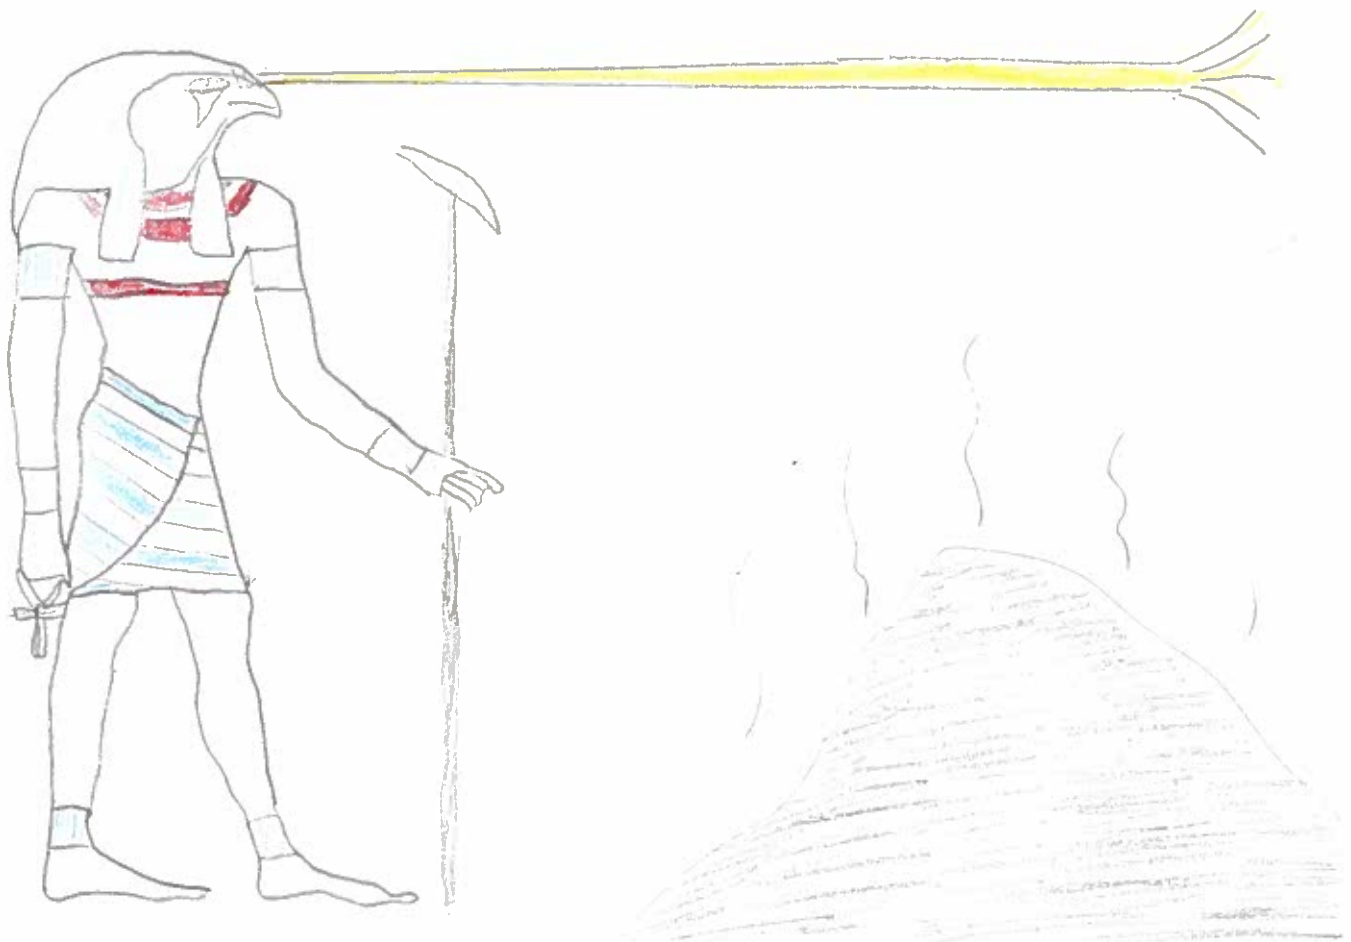

He burnt the rope with his eyes and ran behind a tree preventing the dragons flames from burning him. Rá quickly shot light at all three dragons. Again this turned all of these dragons into a pile of ash.

Releasing so much power in such little time caused Rá to faint again. This time he woke up in some sort of underground hidden layer. He saw ten vampires and another dragon.

This dragon was different from the other dragons. It was bigger, smarter, and much stronger. It was the dragon god!

Once again Rá burnt the rope with his eyes. Suddenly all ten vampires charged at him. He used his last bit of energy and burnt all ten vampires into dust.

Rá fell to the ground in exhaustion with the dragon towering over him. As the dragon opened its mouth readying itself to breath fire, Rá tried to shoot a beam of light. But it was no use, all of his energy was drained.

As the dragon god was about to end the life of Rá, Jacob came out of nowhere leaping on the neck of the fierce dragon. Jacob pulled out a vampire's fang from his pocket and stabbed the dragon's heart, slaying a very powerful god. This heroic action saved his best friend Rá's life! Because of such brave actions, the true hero of this story was Jacob.

About The Author

Shakir Serdani was born in Stellenbosch, South Africa on March 9th, 2001. He moved to Hood River, Oregon when he was two years old. Growing up in such a small town his passion was basketball. At the age of six Shakir moved to Corvallis, Oregon which was a bigger town with more opportunity. He went to Cheldelin Middle School and played on the Future Raiders basketball team. He is now still pursuing both of his academic and athletic dreams.

Summary

Rá the sun god and his best friend Jacob went exploring in the forbidden woods one day. Jacob was captured by vampires and taken to the dragon god. Rá had to defeat the vampires that he faced by using his powers, where he shot a beam of light through both eyes that was 10,000 times brighter and stronger than the sun. After Rá finally reached the dragon his energy was drained and he could no longer use his powers anymore. He collapsed to the ground in exhaustion and as the dragon god was about to kill him with one breath of fire, Jacob killed the dragon and saved the day.